Tools and benefits

Web-Based—Is not a program that you will need to download can be accessed from any computer with an up-to-date browser

Security—Contrary to popular belief, web-based technologies are often more secure due to centralized updates, encryption, robust access control, reduced client-side vulnerabilities, and professional management, among other factors

Up to Date—Tax Savvy-tools are updated regularly for changes in the tax law and provide support on IRC section 4960, 4968 and 512(a)(6) calculations, to name a few

Multiple users at one time—this technology is designed for simultaneous access taking into account all of the sources where information is coming from—now tax, legal, accounting, human resources, payroll, and anyone else contributing to the 990 can work on the document at the same time

Customized access—the 990 tracker tool enables restriction of access to different areas of the return so sensitive information can be restricted to specific individuals (e.g. Master Compensation data)

Consolidated dashboard—this technology includes a dashboard which shows the progress of the return throughout the process up to the point of completion and filing

These new tools are in addition to our other great technology offerings like eWorkPapers, GoRS, CCH, and Nonprofit Income Tax Engine (NITE), among others.
