

A Connected Enterprise is an agile organization, able to respond quickly and effectively to changes in the life sciences sector. It empowers employee teams to embrace innovative ways of thinking, engaging and motivating the workforce and leading to greater recruitment and retention success.

Key considerations

- How do we foster an innovative, forwardlooking culture?
- How can we model and incentivize flexibility?
- What skills and training do our employees need?
- How can we attract and retain the right digital and entrepreneurial talent?

How KPMG can help

- Building a coherent, pragmatic, customer focused people strategy
- Aligning key stakeholders and employees in support of the business transformation, and helping you communicate the benefits
- Coordinating processes such as recruitment and talent management to reflect your customer-centric goals

Learning to make people better

A KPMG member firm led an international consortium of experts to create two of the largest and most innovative leadership development programs in the world, involving patients in the design and delivery of content. This initiative is having clear and continuing impact on the quality of front-line patient care.

The complexities and dilemmas involved in the management of modern healthcare present some of the most difficult challenges facing our society. This project clearly illustrates what can be achieved by multi-disciplinary teams working together for a clear and shared purpose.

We deliver the results that matter.

What does a Connected Enterprise look like?

The most successful organizations exhibit eight characteristics that span all aspects of the enterprise. The capabilities of front office, middle office and back office integrate seamlessly to support your brands, products and services, interactions and workforce.
